

“We hit our financial goal two weeks ago, and we have two weeks to go... All I can say is ‘Watch out! Here we go!’”

– Dennis Newton, Newton’s Jewelers

Newton’s Jewelers

Newton’s Jewelers had humble beginnings. Dennis Newton’s great grandfather, a tinker who traveled on foot from village to village following the Civil War, opened the first store in Thorny, Texas, in 1875. The business was relocated twice, finally settling in Graham, Texas, in 1928 where it grew and prospered. With such a rich history, Dennis began discussing the timing of his retirement with Wilkerson years ago. It was important to him that his great grandfather’s dream end on a high note. “I would not even consider another firm to run my sale,” he admits. “They know their business.” His confidence was not misplaced. “We hit our financial goal two weeks ago, and we have two weeks to go. All I can say is ‘Watch out! Here we go!’ My advice to any other jeweler thinking about running a sale? Leave it to the professionals of Wilkerson. They are knowledgeable, professional and honest. Any sale they run would not damage your reputation. They’re excellent.”
